Count yourself in: Census Day is April 1, 2020

The U.S. Constitution calls for a census every ten years to make sure that states are represented fairly in the House of Representatives. The importance of counting each resident goes far beyond this. The census also helps the Federal Government decide how to direct $675 billion per year to states and communities for programs and services that people count on.

Census Day, April 1, 2020, is observed nationwide. By this date, every home will receive an invitation to participate in the 2020 Census. For the first time in census history, residents can respond online, including on mobile devices. Instructions are provided in the invitation and include ways to answer the questions by mail or phone.

When you respond to the census, you tell the Census Bureau where you live as of April 1, 2020. The goal is to count the entire population, just once, and at the location where each person usually lives. The census doesn't ask for your political affiliation, Social Security number or financial information.

The census asks questions of people in homes and group living situations, including how many people live or stay there, and the gender, age and race of each person. The Bureau estimates that it takes 10 minutes to complete.

Dear neighbors:

Another winter has arrived in Bel Air. Button up, smile at your neighbors and stay safe.

When it snows, please be sure that your home and business walkways, as well as your cars, stay clear of snow and ice. This protects both pedestrians and motorists as we travel around Town during bad weather.

Be a neighbor and check on those who are elderly or have physical or mental disabilities.

If you haven't done so already, it's not too late to get a flu shot. The flu season usually stays around until at least March.

But most importantly, have fun in Town this winter. Here are a few ways to do that:

- Solve a mystery at the LASOS Murder Mystery Dinner on January 11, 2020 from 6:00 to 9:00 p.m. at the Bel Air Armory. It will be up to you to figure out which partygoer is guilty and to unmask the killer. This is a fundraiser to support LASOS Inc. literacy programs. There will be raffles and a silent auction. Tickets via Eventbrite www.eventbrite.com
- Hear an inventive take on bluegrass with The Seldom Scene at the Bel Air Armory on January 17, 2020 at 7:30 p.m. Tickets at <https://www.eventbrite.com/e/the-seldom-scene-in-concert-tickets-84544893051>
- Follow through on those New Year resolutions at the Health and Wellness Fair at the Bel Air Armory on January 25, 2020 from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. There will be fitness classes, dozens of vendors with healthy ideas, samples, free passes and plenty of give-a-ways.
- Brighten up your home or office with a new piece of art at the Harford Artists Take a Chance on Art event at the Armory March 7, 2020 from 7:00 – 10:00 p.m. It is a lottery-style auction and a good time! Tickets are $100 per couple (or $25.00 per person to enjoy the evening/$75.00 individual.) Everyone goes home with a piece of art valued at over $75. Enjoy music, fabulous art, light fare, wine and great conversation. Finish the evening with a lively lottery to see who gets to take home a piece of art. Tickets via Eventbrite www.eventbrite.com.
- Explore your heritage at Harford County Public Library's 7th Genealogy Conference at the Armory on March 28, 2020. Check the library's events webpage for details: <https://hcplonline.org/calendar.php>

Townie,

Mayor Amy G. Chmielewski

Around May, the U.S. Census Bureau will begin visiting college students who live on campus, people living in senior centers, people who live in group situations, as well as people who have not responded.

Confidentiality

Under Title 13 of the U.S. Code, the Census Bureau, which is a nonpartisan agency, cannot release any identifiable information about people, their households or their businesses to anyone or to other government agencies.

These include the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) and U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE). The answers to census questions are used only to produce anonymous statistics.

Importance

The census shapes communities in ways that impact day-to-day life. Federal funds support public safety, schools, addiction recovery and prevention, job training, recreation, accessible housing, small businesses, medical research, disability services, mental health programs, children’s health insurance and nutrition, road and infrastructure construction and more.

This makes it important that everyone, including children under 5 years old, people who are not employed, senior citizens and college students are counted. These groups are sometimes hard to reach but use important programs such as Head Start funding, school breakfast programs, unemployment insurance, Senior Activity Centers and Federal Pell Grants.

In short, everyone counts.

Census
2020

The Census will be accessible

1. The Census Bureau will have a video in American Sign Language available to guide people through responding online.
2. People can respond in English by Telecommunication Device for the Deaf (TDD) at 844-467-2020.
3. You can request an in-person Census taker who uses American Sign Language.
3. There will be Braille and large print guides available to those who request them.

The 2020 Census will provide an up-to-date snapshot of Bel Air, says Town Administrator Jesse Bane. The numbers help Town staff apply for federal funding for needed projects, prepare for disaster and emergency response, plan support services for a growing senior population and ensure that needed amenities and services are available to all ages near where they live.

“If we are going to get our fair share of federal funding, we need to know the numbers,” he says. “We know there are people living in Town that don’t want anyone to know they are here. But there are services that we can provide them if we have the funding. If we are losing out on that because the census doesn’t have their information, then we will have to find other ways to take care of those underserved populations. The information collected is confidential. We are just looking for numbers. It’s important. We want to provide people with the services that they are entitled to.”

How to identify a Census Bureau field representative at your door

A census worker who comes to your door will only ask you the same questions that are on the survey. They do not ask questions about money, bank accounts, political party affiliation or your Social Security number.

The field representative will present an ID badge that includes:

- The census worker's name
- The census worker's photograph
- A Department of Commerce watermark
- An expiration date

A field representative carries an official bag with the Census Bureau logo or a laptop for conducting the survey.

The field representative will provide you with a letter from the Census Bureau on official letterhead stating why they are visiting your residence.

Upon request, the field representative will provide you with their supervisor's contact information and/or the phone number for your Census Bureau regional office. The regional office supervises the activities of all field representatives in your area.

If you wish to independently confirm that the person at your door is a Census Bureau employee, you can enter their name in the Census Bureau's staff search website at www.census.gov/cgi-bin/main/email.cgi, or contact the Philadelphia Regional Census Center at 267-780-2600.

A Census Bureau worker will visit you at home if you have not completed the census questionnaire online, on the phone or by mail. (Stock photo, US Census Bureau)

How to identify a phone call from the Census Bureau

The Census Bureau uses two contact centers, one in Jeffersonville, Indiana, and the other in Tucson, Arizona. The caller will identify themselves and the name of the survey. If they are unable to reach you, they will leave a message with a case ID associated with your survey.

Most Census Bureau calls asking you to participate in a survey originate from one of the following numbers: (812) 218-3144, Jeffersonville Contact Center or (520) 798-4152, Tucson Contact Center.

If you receive a call and wish to independently verify that a number is from the Census Bureau, you can call one of the following numbers:

- 1-800-523-3205 Jeffersonville, IN or 1-800-642-0469 Tucson, AZ
- 1-800-923-8282 Customer Service Center

Motorcycle officers aid in response time and community relations

At least one Town of Bel Air resident may owe his life to a police motorcycle.

Last year, Officer John Ganovski was on motorcycle patrol at Rockfield Manor during a well-attended wine festival. He heard an emergency dispatch about an individual in cardiac arrest in a nearby neighborhood. On a motorcycle, Officer Ganovski bypassed surrounding heavy vehicle and pedestrian traffic. He was first on the scene and provided CPR until an ambulance arrived.

Motorcycles and specially trained officers have been a part of emergency response, traffic control, ceremonies and funerals since the early 1900s. In the Town of Bel Air four specially trained officers and two new police-equipped motorcycles have expanded the BAPD's motor unit.

Eisenbauer's Chesapeake Harley Davidson donated one motorcycle in October. The Town purchased the second.

Corporal James Farrell oversees the unit. "A motorcycle is equipped in the same way as a police car," he says. "They have an MDT (Mobile Data System) for checking licenses, lights, siren and a patrol radio." Town of Bel Air motorcycles are also capable of carrying support weapons for active shooter situations, he added.

Officers must also complete a challenging two-week course in motorcycle policing. This training requires immense physical and mental stamina and known as some of the toughest training in law enforcement. More than half of its candidates do not pass on the first attempt.

Motorcycles need just a three-foot space to maneuver. They go where patrol cars can't, such as pedestrian areas at Rockfield Manor and the MA & PA Trail. They maneuver through crowds, climb hills and ride on stairs. Bel Air Police motorcycles often provide support and intersection control for ceremonies and funerals in other jurisdictions.

From an economic standpoint, motorcycles cost about half of that of a patrol car. Motorcycles average 50 mpg as compared to 15 mpg of a police SUV.

One of their most valuable powers, says Corporal Farrell, may be their role in community policing. The police motor unit is the center of attention at community events such as First Fridays, the annual Bel Air Town Run, the BBQ Bash and the Bel Air Youth Camp.

"Motorcycles make the officer more approachable. We want to build positive interactions with children so that they are not afraid of the police," says Corporal Farrell.

The Town of Bel Air uses a council-manager form of government, which combines the leadership and local advocacy of elected town commissioners with the day-to-day managerial skills of a town administrator. Meet the three newly elected commissioners (right).

The Commissioners

Bel Air's five-member board of commissioners is the Town's legislative and policymaking body. They focus on short- and long-term goals such as public safety, infrastructure, economic development, land use, capital projects, special needs and ongoing maintenance of Town buildings, parks and public spaces. They approve the annual budget and tax rates.

Bel Air's commissioners live in the Town. They are Mayor Amy G. Chmielewski, Patrick Richards, Erin Hughes, Kevin Bianca and Donna Kahoe.

Mayor Chmielewski was elected Chair of the Board by her fellow commissioners at the November 18, 2019 Town Hall meeting, following the Town election. She is a voting member of the Board of Commissioners, presides at Town meetings and represents the Town at many events and functions. The mayor also assigns agenda items to committees, facilitates communication and understanding between elected and appointed officials, and assists the governing body in setting goals and advocating policy decisions.

The Town Administrator

Commissioners hire a Town Administrator to carry out administrative responsibilities. They also supervise the Town Administrator's performance. Jesse Bane became Town Administrator in 2016.

The Town Administrator administers municipal projects and programs. The administrator prepares a budget for the board's review; hires and supervises government staff; serves as the board's chief advisor; and carries out the board's policies. Board members and residents look to the manager for complete and objective information about local operations. The administrator makes policy recommendations to the board and is bound by whatever action the board takes.

Erin Hughes

What made you decide to run for Town Commissioner? I love living in Town. A lot of innovative things are going on. I volunteer for the Bel Air Downtown Alliance and have met some great people. I thought being a commissioner might be a good fit and another way to give back.

What are the challenges ahead in the next five years?

People are looking for a neighborhood feel in their community. It is a move away from the suburban sprawl and mall-centric lifestyle. One challenge is to figure out a way to bolster small businesses downtown, but also find alternative uses for larger commercial properties. I'd also like to improve pedestrian and bicycle safety. There is quite a bit that has been done, but still a few problem places. Finally, we have to decide about the police station, an important part of Bel Air.

What is your favorite Bel Air event or activity?

The Armory is probably my new favorite place. I love when people come up with a new cool way to use spaces that are underutilized or have fallen into disrepair. The incubator shops in Armory Marketplace are a fantastic use of what were just dilapidated garages. All kinds of events happen in the Armory space itself. My recent favorites have been the cover band shows from Petticoat Junction (Tom Petty) and Technicolor Motorhome (Steely Dan), and the Roll Out the Barrel whiskey tasting night.

What else is important for people to know about your vision for Bel Air?

The most important thing is that I am really open to ideas. I would never make decisions without getting different perspectives from residents and businesses. Part of my campaign was to do a lot with voter education. I want to let people know how the Board of Commissioners works and about the Town committees. I'd like more people to participate in the governance process to build a stronger community.

Donna Kahoe

What made you decide to run for Town Commissioner?

Pedestrian safety has become very concerning to me. My husband and I walk everywhere. We have seen many new and younger families with children as well as senior citizens who also walk to the stores and restaurants. Also, I want to make sure that we are continually marketing our downtown district. It's become a destination for businesses, artists and other performers.

What are the challenges ahead in the next five years? Traffic control is important. I am not talking about traffic volume. We don't have much control over that since there are several main roads that come into Town.

Also, there are residents who are divided about a new proposed police station. I look forward to seeing the studies that have been done so far. I also want to help find out what our merchants need to stay in Town and prosper.

What is your favorite Bel Air event or activity? We are big fans of the BBQ Bash. Partly because we live two blocks away from it and the aroma always pulls us in. We try to participate in as many events as we can. We use the MA & PA Trail quite a lot. It's such a great place for people.

What else is important for people to know about your vision for Bel Air? I am very excited to work with this Board of Commissioners and the Town staff. The staff has been terrific and so competent at what they do.

This board brings a different dynamic, so I look forward to seeing what we can do together for what is already a really great town.

Kevin Bianca

What made you decide to run for Town Commissioner?

When my wife and I moved here, we realized that this was our forever home. There are a lot of neighborhoods like ours that are changing from original owners to younger families. It's really cool to have that mix. My wife suggested that there ought to be someone on the Board who is thinking about the future and making sure this stays a great place to live. She talked me into running.

What are the challenges ahead in the next five years? One of the issues that seems to be staring us down is figuring out how to improve the Town Hall and police station while still being economically responsible for our residents. Residents want to figure out how to slow down traffic in neighborhoods and on Main Street and make sure pedestrians are safe when crossing roadways. The Town will get busier. We need to get in front of this.

What is your favorite Bel Air event or activity? We love the Farmers Market on Saturdays. My son and I let my wife sleep and we go the Farmers Market, then we go to a playground. My son loves Plumtree Park. We get some lunch, do a home project (and stop in Courtland Hardware four or five times!) You can spend a whole weekend without ever having to leave town.

What else is important for people to know about your vision for Bel Air? I like to think I am a problem solver. I am sure that there will be a few problems over the next four years. There are no major issues here, just things that need some work. I like to think that all of the staff and commissioners working together can solve quite a bit of these problems. All in all, Bel Air is a pretty great place. Hopefully we can keep it that way.

Come to play, stay and get wet

The Chesapeake Sensory Plaza, set to open in April 2020 next to the creative playground at Rockfield Park, will be the first interactive water playground of its kind in Maryland.

You might describe it as serious fun. The 5000-square-foot play space is designed to represent the Chesapeake Bay watershed area and highlight the importance of water conservation and environmental stewardship. However, it is a hands-on, lets-get-wet play area.

Manual hand pumps and water switches start the flow of water into a 60-foot-long channel that lines the plaza. Children can maneuver water flow through lock gates, flaps, dams and water wheels. Educational signage and illustrations will explain the delicate ecosystem that the Chesapeake Bay watershed occupies all around us.

‘We work every day to maintain Bel Air as a sustainable community,’ says Kevin Small, Director of Planning. ‘The Chesapeake Sensory Plaza is our opportunity to begin to instill these values in our children. However, we are also delighted to bring a unique play opportunity for the children of Bel Air.’

The Plaza’s design draws inspiration from the notion that water is an Earth substance that fuels the senses and brings us closer to our roots. Playing in water encourages children to see themselves as part of the delicate ecosystem that binds us to each other and to the planet.

The Chesapeake Sensory Plaza was funded by a Building Better Communities grant from the American Water Charitable Foundation and the National Recreation and Park Association. The Greater Bel Air Community Foundation, the Bel Air Recreation Committee and The Dresher Foundation also provided funding. The Town applied $15,000 from the Open Space program, funded by fees in lieu.

A ribbon cutting is planned for April 18, 2020.

Who's the new face in Bel Air's Finance office window?

The Town of Bel Air Finance Department's newest staff member is Jennifer Hoffman, who came to work as the accounts payable accountant in July.

The lifelong Harford County resident has worked in the past as an accounting clerk and insurance agent. Jennifer lives in Fallston with her family.

Her duties include working at the finance department window, where she answers questions and takes payments for just about everything including real estate and personal property taxes, utility bills, parking and red light tickets, and other miscellaneous fees. She also processes payments to the Town's vendors and answers telephone inquiries.

"Jennifer is often the first person that our residents see when they come into Town Hall to pay a bill or to ask a question," says Rachel Deaner, Deputy Director of Finance. "We can always count on her with a ready smile and a willingness to provide great customer service. We hired her because she had the experience and attitude to excel in this position."

Need some shade on your street? Free Street Tree Program can help

The Town of Bel Air’s Tree Committee aims to increase the number of trees (or “tree canopy”) within Town limits. Municipal tree canopies reduce summer peak temperatures, and improve air quality. Trees also improve climate resilience and help attract businesses and residents.

Though the Town cannot plant on private property, it can plant trees in public rights-of-way. If the planting lawn between the curb and sidewalk in front of your home is at least four feet wide, the Town may be able to plant street trees. There is no cost to residents.

Note that not all roadside lawn areas are good places for tree plantings. When deciding to plant, the Department of Public Works will check the planting area, underground utilities and overhead wires. Depending on location and planting area, species may include Serviceberry, Sargent cherry, maple, dogwood, Ginko and elm.

If you have the space for street trees and want FREE street trees near your property, contact the Planning Department at 410-638-4540 to request plantings or additional information.

Julia Potler took over the position of Bel Air Armory Manager in May 2019. She shared some of her thoughts about the Armory’s future and why you may see even more music, theater and visuals arts there over the next few years.

Tell us about your background and what brought you to this job?

I studied music and arts administration at Goucher College and have worked for several performing arts organizations and in event planning. I also did some sales work while I was home with my children. I can combine my organizational skills, my artistic side and my sales experience in this job.

What kinds of events take place here and what might we see in the future?

The Bel Air Armory has been a venue for so many things: concerts, theater, worship services, exercise classes, fundraisers, the annual Bel Air Film Festival, retirement parties, weddings, birthday parties and Bingo events, just to name a few. There are many possibilities for other things. I’ve thought about more concerts, family theater and a dinner theater, for example. We’d also like to rent out the space more often during the day for business meetings. I organized a Free Health and Wellness Fair for the community to take place on January 25th from 9:00 a.m. – 1:00 p.m., bringing over 20 local businesses together!

What makes the Armory stand out as an event space?

The Bel Air Armory has 5,264 square feet of floor space and a 500-square-foot stage. It’s a big space and there aren’t many similar spaces in the area. It’s an open and flexible multi-purpose space. Over these last few months in the position, I have learned that many people don’t even realize the Armory is a space that can be rented. A lot can be done with the space. I hope to spread the word!

The outdoor courtyard is landscaped and very green. Though it is a public space, it has been a great spot for ceremonies. There is a commercial kitchen on the lower level for licensed caterers. There are a lot of possibilities here. Depending on whether an organization is nonprofit or for-profit, rates range from $400 – $900 for eight hours. There are also four-hour rental rates.

What’s been new here recently?

We had Highland Echoes, a traveling Scottish troupe. The Indian School for Performing Arts hosted a cultural dance. We had our first crab feast in September and plan to do it again on August 28, 2020. Recently, I surveyed the community about interest in ballroom dance classes and had hundreds of responses, so we have scheduled those classes from January through March 2020.

Talk a bit about the importance of having a community space for people to gather.

I had no idea what a tight community this is and how many people volunteer their time for community events. People have lived here for a long time and there is a sense of ownership. People seem to want to support a space where they can come together. Community spaces are an extension of home.

How might we see your arts background in the future of the Armory?

As a state designated Arts and Entertainment District, we are fortunate to have great local organizations that produce arts events throughout town. I am excited to use my arts background and the connections I have throughout Maryland to bring a variety of new events to the Armory. It’s been great to have such positive community feedback about the direction we are taking with the Armory.

Follow the Town of Bel Air Armory on Facebook for information on current and future events.
